LIFE15 IPE IT 013 - PREPAIR "PO REGIONS ENGAGED TO POLICIES OF AIR" - Launch Conference

The densely-populated, intensively-farmed and heavily-industrialized Po Valley in northern Italy fails to meet air quality limit values for particulate matter, ozone and nitrous oxides. Meteorological conditions and the transport and dispersion of pollutants are strongly influenced by the morphological characteristics of the Po Valley and the northern Adriatic Basin. The transport of pollutants is limited by the Alps, the Apennines and the Dinaric Alps.

To comply with the Air Quality Directive, National Emissions Ceiling Reduction Commitments and the EU's Clean Air for Europe strategy, LIFE-IP PREPAIR sees the collaboration of 18 partners made of Regional Authorities, Municipalities, Regional environmental agencies and development agencies that will build capacity and strengthen coordination among public authorities and private operators. It will carry out pilot actions to improve air quality and assess the effectiveness and transferability of those measures in the project area and other EU regions. The project will establish a near-real time web-based system for sharing air quality and emissions data and air quality models. Measures will focus on four main sectors: biomass burning, energy efficiency, transport and agriculture.
